

Policy, risk insight and analysis associate roles

RoSPA is currently seeking to increase its associate policy risk insights and analytical team capacity as a result of projects and partnership growth.

We are a charity with over a century of experience of improving road safety, and preventing life-changing injury in all aspects of life. We work alongside policy and decision makers across all levels of UK government. Our global membership and high performing networks include some of the world's largest and most recognised brands.

What we're looking for

You will be an open minded and critical thinker with solid analysis experience and strong communication skills. Ideally you will possess a good understanding of road safety risk policy and its context. Experience or understanding of project management techniques is an advantage.

Interested, and maybe don't tick all of those boxes? Say hello anyway, we hire principally on attitude and will always look to help you grow.

For an informal discussion, or if you would like to find out more, please contact either:

Becky Needham, Road safety manager, England, rneedham@rospa.com

David Walker, Head of road and leisure safety, djwalker@rospa.com

